

The portal is part of the e-Learning action-program of the European Commission. It enables all current and future initiatives of that action-program to be beneficial for another and therefore, it is unique in the services it has to offer.

It's main objective is to introduce relevant information and supply available resources to people interested in e-Learning. It aims to improve the co-operation and interaction between all parties and also the offer of a large variety of services and resources.

The portal is a meeting point for all those, who are interested in the use of multimedia technology and the Internet. It is used by people, sharing a common interest in education, vocational training and life-long learning in Europe.

The content comprises documents regarding e-Learning policies and e-Learning initiatives as well as the presentation of key questions about new learning processes or the use of new technologies in Europe. The portal also introduces European institutions, projects and events that take place on a European level.

The latest announcement on the portal is a competition, held by the European Commission regarding personal experiences of e-Learning. Participants are asked to write a short paragraph of not more than 30 lines, explaining what they liked/disliked about e-Learning and in which way their work or studies have been influenced by it.

We want to gather information about specific experiences in order to improve our understanding of the implications and situation of e-Learning in Europe, as well as disseminating outstanding experiences.

Further Information or conditions about the contest are accessible via the e-Learning portal www.elearningeuropa.info . And all Europeans are invited to participate.
